

TROOPS START FOR THE SCENE

Race Riots At Springfield, Illinois, Are Getting Worse And Worse Today.

NEGROES ARMING THEMSELVES NOW

First Regiment Ordered Out From Chicago As Well As Troops From Other Towns In The State By The Governor.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Springfield, Ill., Aug. 15.—Two white men were killed and one negro lynched, more than half a hundred persons injured and two score houses, mostly occupied by negroes, burned last night as the result of an attempt of a mob to lynch a negro, who had assaulted a white woman.

After a night of riot, arson and slaughter the state troops were called out by Governor Deneen. They succeeded early today in restoring a semblance of order and stopping the fire.

A thousand troops are now patrolling the streets and it is believed further disorder will be prevented.

The lynching of the negro Charles Hunter occurred when a big fire which destroyed the homes of about thirty-five negro families in the negro section of the "Bad Lands" was at its height.

This happening just preceded the arrival of outside troops.

Hunter was accused of having fired upon whites.

He was cornered in a salarway, shot several times, and then hanged to a tree and his body riddled with bullets.

As the result of the mob's action one man is dead, another will probably die and several others were injured, while Loper's restaurant has been wrecked, the shanties of a number of negroes residing in the "Bad Lands" burned, and Gov. Deneen, at the request of Sheriff Warner, called a number of companies of the Illinois National Guard to Springfield to preserve order.

Among the injured was R. W. Chaffin, candidate for president of the United States on the prohibition party ticket, who was struck in the head with a brick.

The Dead and Injured.
Lewis Johnson, aged 14, was found dead at the bottom of the stairway leading to the buffet of the Loper restaurant.

The injured include: Fred Ramsey of the Gatling gun section of the Illinois National Guard, struck on arm by stone; Oscar Dahlkamp, policeman, struck over eye by rock; James Scott, white, shot by negroes in hip near left lung, may die; Albert Berlioz, employed at post office, shot in hip by stray bullet; Philip P. Pollock of Chicago, badly lacerated while riding Mayor Rice in exempting from mob at Loper's; John A. Snel of Shearn, shot in shoulder by negro; Edward Bingham, struck in head with brick; Roy T. D. Logan, struck in head with brick, and Robert Sturges, waiter at Loper's restaurant, artery of left forearm cut by shot.

Causes of the Rioting.
Richardson and Joe James, another negro who was in jail awaiting trial on the charge of murdering Clorcy Kallard, who had chased him from his house which he had entered with the evident intention of attacking Kallard's daughter, escaped by means of the automobile of Harry T. Loper, commissary and major of the Second brigade of the Illinois National Guard, who had been requisitioned by Sheriff Warner to take the mob out of town. The men were split out of the jail by a back door and the rear alley, while the mob's attention was attracted by a shot of the fire department, and were taken to the Sangamon river, where in charge of two sheriff's deputies they were placed on board a Chicago & Alton train and taken to Bloomington and lodged in jail there.

Abuse Negroes, Wreck Restaurant.
The mob, when they learned that the negroes really had escaped, determined to wreak their vengeance on negroes in general, and a number of negroes were maltreated. An attack was made on the jail, which was guarded by the deputy sheriffs, police and troop "D," First cavalry, Illinois National Guard. A mob of about a thousand persons assembled in front of Loper's restaurant and wrecked the place, inside and out, the wrecking men attempting to prevent them, though a force was stationed in front of the restaurant. Some of the Gatling gun platoon members were maltreated in their effort to defend the place.

Loper and one of his waiters, Roland Sturds, fired revolvers over the heads of the crowd from within the restaurant in the effort to intimidate the mob, without effect. They finally retired to the basement. The mob robbed the cash drawer in the buffet of its contents, $150. They demolished everything around the place, how the boy, Lewis Johnson, came to his death is not known. One doctor says he was shot in the neck and another that he was killed by a broken neck.

Shortly after 11 o'clock the mayor attempted to address the mob. The shout was raised: "Throw him into the fire!"

The mayor was seized and roughly handled. He was rescued by friends, who came to his assistance through a shower of bricks and other missiles, and hustled him into a nearby cigar store.

Worse Than Ever.
Peoria, Ill., Aug. 15.—A Springfield dispatch says that Assistant County Treasurer W. E. Bowers was caught and shot this morning by infuriated negroes, after which he was robbed of several hundred dollars and his watch and diamonds.

Howe will die, five bullets having taken effect in vital parts.

The negroes are swimming back into the east end heavily armed and a worse reign of terror is expected to-night. The officers and militia are powerless.

Chicagoans are departing on every train and interurban cars for places of safety.

First Is Off.
Chicago, Ill., Aug. 15.—The first infantry of the Illinois national guard left Chicago at three o'clock this afternoon for Springfield.

Urged to Fight.
Decatur, Ill., Aug. 15.—Frightened negroes from Springfield are fleeing into the city, the women and children seeking for places of safety and the men try to arm the colored people here to go back to Springfield with them to fight.

WHITE STAR LINE TO TRAIN ITS OFFICERS

Clipper Ship Mersey Manned by Boys Sails from Liverpool for Sydney.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Liverpool, Aug. 15.—Next Thursday there will sail down the river Mersey, the clipper ship Mersey, bound for Sydney, New Wales, with the youngest crew that ever managed a ship in the real carrying trade. She will have between fifty and sixty boys to handle the sails, square the yards, tend the wheel and do the other multitude of odds and ends that fall to the ordinary Jack-Tar on a ship-rigged sailing vessel. She belongs to the White Star Line, under whose ownership she will trade to various parts of the world, as circumstances may dictate, with her individual list of freight rates and her opportunity, the same as other sailing vessels, to pay her way wherever she goes.

This does not mean, however, that the White Star Line intends to forsake the field of ocean steamships for its carrying trade, nor yet what it means to recruit by the way, a number of boys instead of men in its service. The fact is, it is nothing more nor less than a school to teach the youngsters the ways of seafaring life in order that the steamship fleet may continue to be manned by officers who know the handling of a ship from the rudiments up.

Under the commander of the Mersey there will be an efficient nautical and educational staff, by whom the ends will be carefully and regularly exercised and in strictest, and in addition to completing their general education, they will be taught the special subjects required to qualify them for their profession. The ends will learn about naval architecture, construction, outfit and measurement of boats, charter parties, keeping of log-books, etc., also on the different qualities of coal, steam engines and the rudiments of marine engines. They will work the ship, and thus learn how to take in sail, bend and unbend the canvas, make repairs, steer and take their regular turn on watch. In port they will learn about the receiving and discharging of cargo, its stowage, ventilation and lashing, and also about the various duties of their profession. On Saturday the Chicago Athletic association will conduct its annual regatta for sailing craft under the patronage of the Lake Michigan Yachting association.

LIPTON CUP RACES SAILED THIS WEEK

Will be Most Pretentious Aquatic Event in History of the Great Lakes.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Chicago, Ill., Aug. 15.—With the outer harbor dotted with a fleet of several scores of sail and power yachts of all sizes, rigs and descriptions, and a number more known to be on their way from various ports along the lake, it looks as if the "Lipton Cup races and Yacht Carnival week" will be the most pretentious aquatic event in the annals of yachting on the great lakes.

While the series of races will be the all-absorbing feature of the week, the elaborate setting to be given the event will serve to rob the sailing classic of much of its luster. The initial leg of the Lipton Cup races is to be sailed this afternoon, the second on Monday, with the concluding night on Tuesday.

In addition to the yacht races the program for the week provides for rowing contests, swimming races, sailing parties, speed trials between fast power boats, dancing at the clubs skirting the shore, dinners and luncheons.

On Wednesday evening the great Yonellon night celebration will be given and it will be a fitting climax to the outdoor demonstration. On Thursday the Illinois Athletic club will give its initial regatta and over eighty leading "canoe backs" are expected to compete. Power boat men will have their inning Friday, when races will be given for the fastest of the "chum-chum" craft of the local fleet. On Saturday the Chicago Athletic association will conduct its annual regatta for sailing craft under the patronage of the Lake Michigan Yachting association.

PHONE MEN TO ORGANIZE LONG DISTANCE SERVICE

Representatives From Independent Companies East Of The Rockies Meet.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Buffalo, Aug. 15.—Within the next few days there will be held a conference at Niagara Falls that promises to have more important and far-reaching results than any move that has been made in the telephone business in America within the past decade. It will be a meeting of representatives of all the important independent telephone companies east of the Rocky Mountains for the purpose of carrying out the formation of a comprehensive long distance organization and to bring about a close interworking affiliation between all the independent interests in the country. While no aggressive move against the Bell interest is contemplated it may be seen readily enough that if the plans of the independents go through they will be in a position to make things interesting for the opposition.

The first matter to receive the attention of the conference will be the long distance proposition. This does not contemplate a merger of all the independent telephone companies, but calls for an agreement as to long-distance telephone business, also telegraphic business, if possible.

The long distance telephone business and the telegraph business will be conducted over new circuits to be built, where needed, on existing rights of way. This means that only the straggling of new wires in some sections will be necessary to complete the entire system. The possibilities of telegraph business are said to be immense, because telegraph and telephone messages now can be sent over the same wires simultaneously. The income to the telephone companies from telegraph service thus obtained will, it is expected, in time be as great as the telephone revenues.

Another important object of the new company will be to prevent any kind of a break in the chain of independent companies composing the long distance line. The financing of the new long distance company has been arranged and a group of some of the company's largest capitalists are said to be backing the proposition. The separate companies also will be financially interested and will handle the telephone and telegraph business at the terminals, where an important feature of their duties will be to originate new business.

The independent companies of New York and Pennsylvania will form the backbone of the movement. Other states whose independent lines will be brought under the new arrangement are Illinois, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Wisconsin, Kentucky, North and South Dakota, West Virginia, Arkansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Michigan, Indiana and Ohio.

Because of the working organizations now in existence and the established circuits covering the greater part of the territory named, the new proposition is being pushed by its promoters to be far simpler and easier of establishment than it would be were all routes to be originated and lines constructed.

IMPRESSIONS OF ISLAND OF JAPAN

REV. R. C. DENISON WRITES OF YOKOHAMA AND INLAND SEA.

COUNTRY TEEMS WITH LIFE

Hysterical Fear of Japanese That Foreigners Will Discover Her Defenses.

Rev. R. C. Denison's letter from Yokohama, which follows, gives one a good idea of the general appearance of the country in Japan. Mr. Denison, while struck by the smallness of everything as compared with our buildings, etc., was impressed with the swarming crowds. This he says is also given by the closeness with which everything is packed in together and the manner in which every little plot of ground is put to some profitable use.

The Inland Sea, of which he writes, is one of the show places of Japan. It is like our Thirty Thousand Islands in the Georgian Bay or the Thousand Islands of the St. Lawrence.

The letters follow:
Yokohama, July 20th, 1908.
When a country is so much discussed and opinions differ so widely as they do concerning Japan one is tempted even to express first an impression. Nevertheless even the glimpses of a few days reveal some very definite things.

The harbor of Yokohama is naturally adapted to defense. If it were thoroughly mined, as undoubtedly it is, it would be almost impossible for a hostile fleet to enter. The harbor bristles with fortifications. There are a number of islands, each with its fort and battery of disappearing guns, and besides many shore batteries were visible. Although trade is reported to be very dull now, and one man said to me that the harbor was practically deserted compared with busy times, it presented a very cosmopolitan appearance as the Mongolian stevedores there were three large British ships, one North German Lloyd, several French vessels, an Austrian cruiser, a number of Japanese ships, a great Standard Oil tank-ship and a number of others, all busily loading or unloading. It seemed good to see the American flag on two of the largest liners, the Siberia and Mongolia. A great change has come over Yokohama harbor since the day when the people who wanted to shut out all the world suddenly watched Commodore Perry's fleet come in. At that time the Japanese ports were open now and Yokohama is a city of many foreign residents and much foreign business, the signs of the times seem to indicate that Japan does not by any means intend that foreigners shall get any of her business of the Orient which she can prevent. A number of facts into which I cannot enter now substantiate this statement. Let me give in hurried outline some of the more obvious features of things Japanese which first strike the newcomer.

One has a feeling that everything is little. The people, the houses, the houses are all small. The really Japanese shops are tiny affairs, with all the wares of the establishment put on display. The children, especially the little girls, look like dolls. The women go clattering and stumbling along the streets on wooden sandals raised an inch and a half or so from the ground on supports. I presume they are worn for cleanliness, to keep the feet above the dust and mud of the street. But if they are worn to make women look tall, instead of an inch and a half they ought to be a foot and a half.

The gardens and fields appear tiny also. Every inch of space is utilized. I noticed a rice field in which one of the levels was a patch of land not much larger than an ordinary American room. The Japanese horse, too, is very small and generally has a vicious look.

The rice fields, by the way, are the result of an immense amount of labor. The land must be divided into sections by dikes and channels and the water must be arranged so that the water can be run from one level to the next below as the growth of the plant requires.

But in the midst of all this littleness one gets on every hand the impression of a life that fairly swarms and overflows. I have seen crowds, as for instance on Chicago day at the World's Fair, and on the streets of London but somehow it has remained for Japanese cities to give me a new sense of teeming life, a sense of undiminished human energy as though it was a mighty and inexhaustible stream. I think there are several reasons for this impression. There is first the very compactness of which I have already spoken. Things are close together. Wherever you turn you see the results of somebody's labor or you see somebody at work. Then there is the number of people. Children are "plentiful as blackberries," as Paulist said. I do not know what the Japanese birthrate is, but I should say it must be very high. Above all this impression of life energy comes, I think, from the amount of physical labor performed in Japan. The Japanese men, putting their little two-wheeled carts on a dog-leg are everywhere. The muscles of the thighs and calves of their brown legs are enough of themselves to give an impression of vitality.

In the country you frequently come upon a man pulling a heavy cart, loaded with bundles of bamboo poles, by a strap passed over one shoulder and across his chest. He tugs and strains like a draft horse. Yesterday morning I saw a piano moved several blocks. Five men put it on their shoulders and carried it all the way. The baby carriage is not yet common in Japan. Women, small girls and occasionally a humiliated and unwilling boy, carry the babies on their backs. The smallest children are tied on securely by bands of cloth, larger ones sit on a short stick wrapped with cloth and supported by bands of cloth passed over the shoulders of the one carrying the child. I have seen women and girls bend over and strain under the weight of children far too heavy for them.

In the harbors and wherever there is a stream of water large enough for his boat the boatman may be seen pulling and pushing on his heavy oar. He stands up to manipulate the oar and every muscle in his body seizes at work. On the whole, Japan is a land where an immense physical strength and hand labor are used.

Signs are apparent everywhere of the transition of Japan's life from the old feudal civilization to the new European civilization. You see old things and new things side by side. I can only give one instance of this now. In the matter of dress it is very striking. Yesterday I saw a Japanese gentleman who wore the frock coat and silk hat of the man of London or Paris. He was attended by a servant in the loose robe worn by the middle class. Just outside the window of the waiting room where this gentleman sat I could see a coolie at work who had almost nothing on in the train, just opposite me, sat a gentleman in his wife and two little girls. He was dressed as a European businessman. Sack suit and Panama straw hat. The little girls had on the old simple picturesque costume with brilliant wallpaper figures and colored sash. The mother was dressed in a plain gray tunic of the old Japanese style. The father had on leather shoes of European cut, but mother and children wore the sandals of the Orient, held on by two cloth straps which are fastened to the sandal sole, one passing over the great toe, the other across the rest of the foot.

It is perhaps a commonplace to say that the Japanese are a wonderfully delf people. But the evidence of it is so numerous and striking that it forces itself on every observer. Every shop window shows it. There are the carved ivory and lacquer, the little cabinets and other articles for household use, the lacquer boxes before the houses and a multitude of other things all delfly and artfully made by hand. The fences in many places are of split bamboo sometimes tacked, sometimes tied together, and the houses in particular show this faculty of the nation for delf hand work. The frames, the panels, the paper partitions which divide the rooms, the sliding trellises, in fact everything about the houses, whether in process of construction or completed all bear the mark of the skilled handiworkman.

There are some of the superficial facts of Japanese life in its external appearance to a new observer. Of other aspects of that life I shall write a little later.

July 23d, 1908.
Kobe, at the head of the Inland sea, is a city of shipping. Its exports and imports now exceed those of any city in the empire. The guide book says it is noted for the purity and dryness of its atmosphere. I should think it would be more noted for its heat. I came down stairs in the hotel, catching perspiration. In a blue sea of steam, which rose from the harbor, and here for a moment I was reminded of a hot steam bath, and as I was looking curiously at a little group of Japanese gentlemen, dressed in kimono, sashie and sandals, an Englishman spoke to me and said, "Very hot weather we are having."

"Yes," with rising indignation, was the best I could honestly do toward agreeing with him.

"Very fortunate we have had no warm weather yet, but we shall get it in a few days now," he knew.

I could only say "yes" more faintly and he glared at me just leaving Kobe.

The harbor at Kobe, like that of the other Japanese ports, is too shallow for large vessels to dock and they lie outside the breakwater in the company boats, used for taking passengers and freight out to the steamers, and for other light boat traffic, swarm about the quays by the hundreds, one is tempted to say thousands. They are all unimproved and are propelled by one or two men at the stern.

The company's small steam launch is ready, however, to take us out to the Bald Maru, when I should much rather go in a sampan boat. The Bald Maru is a little ship and we are the only white passengers on board. The purser speaks a little English, and this afternoon the first officer ventured a few smiling but unintelligible remarks. I did not even know whether or not the meals on this little vessel were served in Japanese or English style, and, as every guide book says beware of Japanese cooking and Chamberlain goes so far as to say that the foreigner can feel sure about beans and bean soups but not much else, I went to the first meal with much anxiety, only to sit down to an palatable and daintily served lunch as one could wish. This had of uncertainty being lifted I could turn to the scenery of the Inland sea.

This is the stretch of water lying between the main island of Honshu and the southern islands of the empire. From Kobe to Moji it is 230 miles long and is dotted with islands, numerous, among which runs a channel deep enough for the largest ocean liners to sail, but very winding and at points less than 100 yards wide. The little ship speeds out from the harbor of Kobe, in a few moments passes the northern point of the island Awaji and is in the famed Inland sea.

Today the waters are perfectly smooth. They must generally be so, so sheltered are they by the hills. There are many boats, small steamers, junks and fishing boats. In these last, the fishermen are huddled in their nets. Their brown naked bodies away and bend quickly and tirelessly, back and forth, and all the motions of the three or four men working in each boat are in unison as hand over hand they draw in the net ropes. Almost every boat has a little shelter of coarse matting spread to afford rest from the heat. The ship moves on from the coast. The delf with the square sails of the junks. Bye and bye we pass the fishermen after the catch. The pots hang to dry in graceful drapes from the masts and square yards, and the shrewd shoulders bend over some work of sorting fish or washing the boat.

The islands of the Inland sea are of all sorts and conditions of shapes. The larger ones are mountainous and in the main quite green, though on some of the smaller islands and on some others there are circles of gray stone above the water's edge. Some are mere fetters of island, broken blocks of rock tumbled with pine trees. Some are of almost perfectly symmetrical cone-shape, rising abruptly from the sea and sloping up to a point. Little fleets of fishing boats, huddled closely together, are moored in the shadow of one of these islands and one wonders how anybody could land or find a place to stand, so sharply does the island rise from the sea.

The Japanese ships are as polite as the people. For every steamer and light-house we pass the colors are dipped in salute. Just now the purser, noting a camera, has come up to smile and bow a half a dozen times, and say, "This island sea, no can take picture." It is another of the consequences of Japan's senseless and hysterical fear that somebody will find out something about her coast defenses.

Japan is morbid on the question of war. Every foreign ship which enters a Japanese port must give an exact statement of any arms or ammunition she may have on board and to whom they are consigned. That is, an American vessel, for instance, carrying arms from America to China must give a full account of them. Failure to do this would bar a ship from Japanese ports and from the Inland sea.

The ship, the Inland sea, passes little villages lying under the hills at the very edge of the water. Every glance of the eye takes in how would make an exquisite picture, and every moment presents a different one. One looks across a green, hilly island in the near foreground. A light gray and one has a new picture with square sails standing out above a gleaming sea and a background of far misty hills. As the afternoon comes on the sea is smooth as glass and the islands lie on it like little banks of moss on a mirror. The ships look as if they were swimming on nothing. Then comes the sunset. The sun goes down in a color of pale rose. A silver gray haze hangs over the peaks of the hills; its lower edge is a straight line cutting across the hills halfway between the summit and the water. The light looks between the hills and shines down, tinting the glassy water. The dark lines of the hillsides cut sharply across the pale gold of the sky. A dull and deeper red glows in one spot where the sun is going down and as the ship comes out into more open water the color expands wide over the sea. Then again we pass into the narrow place in the channel, where the hills come close and the waters darken. In the crest of one island the light from a lighthouse blazes and throws its straight beam of clear light over the deepening gray of the water. So the night closes over the Inland sea.

"And when upon my couch I lie, In silent or in penitive mood, 'Twill flash upon that inward eye Which is the bliss of solitude."

It is dark now. On deck they are having a photograph concert, and a Japanese story-teller is declaiming a tale in the hushed and abrupt accents of his mother tongue. It is a well-known tale. But then a good deal of the philosophy of life consists in holding on to the glow of our best moments in the darkness of the anti-climax.

50TH ANNIVERSARY OF LINCOLN-DOUGLAS DEBATE AT FREEPORT

Will be Fittingly Observed on Aug. 27.—A. A. JACKSON Who Was Present on Memorable Occasion and Others From Rock County Will Attend.

On August 27, 1858, in the city of Freeport, Ill., occurred the most important political debate ever held in America. It was the second of the disputations between Abraham Lincoln, at that time comparatively unknown and the candidate of the new Republican party for the United States senatorship from Illinois, against Stephen A. Douglas, the "Little Giant"—leader of the Illinois Democracy and Democratic idol of the nation. On this occasion, against the advice of Joseph Medill, the great editor of the Chicago Tribune, L. L. Washburne, and nearly all of his other political advisers, Mr. Lincoln pronounced the question: "Can the people of a United States territory, in any lawful way, against the wish of any citizen of the United States, exclude slavery from its limits prior to the formation of a state constitution?"

According to Gen. Smith D. Atkins, present editor of the Freeport Journal, Mr. Lincoln listened patiently to those who vehemently argued against his proposed course of action and then said to the group of politicians assembled in his room at the Brewster House that morning: "I don't know how Mr. Douglas will answer; if he answers that the people of a territory cannot exclude slavery, I will beat him; but if he answers as YOU say he will, and as I BELIEVE he will, he will NEVER BE PRESIDENT of the United States."

What was not apparent to his counselors, Mr. Lincoln clearly foresaw that by asking that question he would put Mr. Douglas in a hole, into a dilemma from which there was no escape. For, answer whichever way he would, Mr. Douglas must either antagonize his own supporters in Illinois who were all opposed to the extension of slavery and who believed that "Popular Sovereignty" would enable any state or territory to exclude slavery or he must antagonize the people of the South who relied upon the decision of the supreme court of the United States in the Dred Scott case to carry slavery into all of the territories.

Mr. Douglas did answer as Mr. Medill and others said he would, and as Mr. Lincoln did beat Mr. Lincoln as a candidate for Senator from Illinois. But in making the answer, Douglas placed himself in direct opposition to the supreme court and so offended the Democrats of the South that they instantly denounced him. That answer split the Democratic national convention at Charleston, South Carolina, in 1860; made the election of Douglas as President of the United States impossible, even as Lincoln had predicted; and popular opinion was and is that it brought Lincoln into such a position of prominence before the people of the country as to compass his own nomination and election as President. The Freeport debate, with its QUESTION, and the answer, with its QUESTION, and the answer, were destined to be the first of a brief series of events which precipitated the great Civil War.

Great throngs of people from all of the surrounding cities, towns, and villages heard this memorable platform controversy and Janesville and Rock county sent its quota. A. A. Jackson who was with twenty-five of the speakers throughout the progress of the addresses, recalls the names of many then residents of Janesville who were in the crowd but none of them are now in the land of the living.

Freeport is to fittingly celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of this historical gathering. Hon. Jonathan P. Doliver, United States Senator from Iowa, will speak of Abraham Lincoln, and Hon. W. T. Davidson of Lewis town, an impassioned and eloquent orator and a personal friend and admirer, will do justice to the memory of Stephen A. Douglas. Congressman Frank O. Lawson will speak of the life and service of the late Congressman Robert R. Hill of the Freeport district who reported in shorthand the original debate.

Mr. Jackson expects to attend the celebration and acting on the supposition that there will be many others born and elsewhere in the county who will also desire to do so, is in correspondence with the railroad authorities regarding the feasibility of putting on a special train that day for the accommodation of those from this section.

FOR COUNTY TREASURER.

I wish to present myself as a candidate for nomination for the office of County Treasurer on the republican ticket at the coming primary election. My experience on the County Board of Supervisors, upon which I am serving my fourth term and also many years of work as a bookkeeper have, I believe, qualified me to properly perform the duties of this office and I ask the consideration of the voters of the county.

CLEANLY WOMAN.

Commonly Thinks by Scrubbing Her Soap That She Cures Dandruff.
Cleanly woman has an erroneous idea that by scrubbing the scalp, which removes the dandruff scales, she is curing the dandruff. She may wash her scalp every day, and yet have dandruff for life long, accompanied by falling hair, too. The only way in the world to cure dandruff is to kill the dandruff germ, and there is no hair preparation that will do that but Newbros' Herpicide. Herpicide by killing the dandruff germ, leaves the hair free to grow as healthy Nature intended. Destroy the cause you remove the effect. Kill the dandruff germ with Herpicide. Sold by leading druggists. Send for stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

ST. JOE WANTS PRESIDENT

ROOSEVELT INVITED TO THE MILITARY TOURNAMENT.

Pleased with Plans for Affair in Missouri City, But Can't Promise to Attend.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 15.—An invitation to President Roosevelt to visit the United States military tournament at St. Joseph, Mo., September 21 to 25, was given Friday by John Donovan, on behalf of the Military Tournament association of St. Joseph and on behalf of the people of that city.

The president expressed a desire to attend, but said he could make no promise because he probably would be unable to make the trip on account of other business.

Mr. Donovan told the president of the plans his association has made for the military show. He has been in Washington conferring with officials of the war department, who think the tournament will be of great value to the army. It is to be exclusively one of United States troops and no militiamen will take part. The soldiers will come from the department of Missouri and will represent every branch of the service, even the balloon corps. The aeronautic exhibit, it is expected, will be one of the most interesting features of the show.

The association has provided $1,000 in cash to be distributed in prizes for the best feats performed by the soldiers. The money will be apportioned as prizes by a board of United States army officers appointed for that purpose.

Mr. Roosevelt became very enthusiastic when Mr. Donovan told him about the plans, and assured his visitor that there was no question of the value of the show to the army.

SHOOTS BRIDE AND SELF.

Louis Ryan of Bridgeport, Ill., Attempts a Double Murder.

Chillicothe, Ill., Aug. 15.—"Something will happen on August 15."

The foregoing statement is the substance of a note written by Louis A. Ryan, 35 years old, of Bridgeport, Ill., who Thursday thrice wounded his bride as she struggled to escape from a room, the door of which he had locked, and then turned his revolver on himself and inflicted a probably fatal wound in the head. The note was found in Ryan's pocket, following the shooting. The attempted murder and suicide occurred in a hotel at Noble, Ill., seven miles west of here, but word of it did not reach this city until late Friday.

Mrs. Ryan was shot twice in the left arm and once in the breast, but it is believed she will recover. Ryan shot himself in the left temple, the bullet emerging behind the right ear. His condition is critical.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT

The state of Illinois recently had a taste of the primary law, and the people are still wondering what happened to them. Wisconsin has been experimenting with the law for the past two years, and is prepared for all sorts of surprises.

The state no longer possesses a party of any political creed, for the new law is a disrupter of parties, and destroys party organization as effectively as though created for that particular purpose.

The man who designed it was far-sighted enough to see what the outcome would be, and boasted to his friends that when parties were dismantled, men in office would be able to perpetuate themselves indefinitely.

The democratic party was not responsible for the Wisconsin law, and the leaders prided themselves on an organization strong enough to ignore it, but when 600 of them got together in convention in Milwaukee, not long ago, they discovered that the law was no joke, and so they were compelled to adjourn without action.

Parties are as necessary to a republican form of government, as a constitution, and any effort to destroy them is a menace to the commonwealth.

The theory that every man should be an independent voter, is a fine spun theory, but as impractical as many other theories.

The average voter is not a politician, and takes but little interest in the game of politics. His political creed is usually an inherited creed, but he depends on intelligent leadership for direction, and this can only be secured by organization in any field of action.

When a church is in the market for a pastor, the choice is not left to the society, but placed in the hands of a small committee, and their judgment is seldom questioned.

Every society or corporation adopts the caucus and convention plan, by delegating to a few men in whom they have confidence, authority to act. Political parties pursued the same practical course, until the much-heralded primary law was adopted.

Today the party is so demoralized that it has nothing to say about its representatives, except to vote for some man who appears to office, and whose ambition is strong enough to endure all sorts of humiliation to get his name before the people.

If the office sought is of much importance the candidate must possess more than cheek and ambition, for there is a strong demand on the coin of the realm and a well filled pocket-book is a necessary requisition.

The four candidates for mayor in Milwaukee, last spring, spent $30,000 to get their names before the people, and the primary election cost the voters $100,000. This was not corporation money, but it was a burden on a few men who sought office.

Many people have been led to believe that United States senators should be elected by the people, and several states have followed the lead of Wisconsin in submitting the question of choice of candidates to popular vote.

While results are not binding, yet no legislature would dare to turn down the people's verdict. The four candidates will spend a small fortune before the primary election in Wisconsin, and three of them, including Mr. Governor, will have nothing to show for their money, save a memory that will be like a nightmare.

It will be a sorry day for the republic when the constitution is amended to elect United States senators by popular vote. The forefathers, who framed the old document, were wise beyond their generation, when they provided for two houses of congress, one to be elected by the people, the other by the people's representatives, assembled in state legislatures.

They knew that if the people were to elect both houses that the senate would be more ornamental than useful and that the two organizations might just as well be combined in one body.

The senate is criticised for conservatism and old-foginess, but it is well for the country that it is not radical. It is the balance wheel that holds the machinery of government steady, and keeps the ship of state on her course.

It is the one organization that stands between an erratic president and the impulsive public. During the past two years the senate has been accused of obstructing legislation, and thwarting the wishes of a president, whom will be law to many people.

President Roosevelt occupies a unique place in the hearts of the American people. He has captured them by his courage and loyalty to what he believes to be right and by his aggressive reform policy, directed largely against corporate and predatory wealth.

"The president can do no wrong," has become the popular watchword, and yet but for the conservative action of the United States senate, and the policy which it has always pursued in taking time to deliberate an important measure, the country would have been involved in more than a prosperity panic.

The president's popularity has carried him over many weak spots, and caused the people to overlook his criticism of the court of appeals in dealing with the Judge Landis decision, but the country will live after he retires from active service, and the work of the senate and its restraining influence, will continue to be felt for good.

The primary law is responsible for the defeat of Senator Long of Kansas, on an issue of fighting the railroads. The people of Kansas have recovered from the grasshopper and granger epidemic, and are again ready to take up the popular cry against railway corporations.

The Chicago Tribune, a great newspaper, but never dependable, politically, is conducting a primary campaign of its own by publishing a list of names for voters to support, independent of party. This is the spirit of the primary law, vote for the best men, and if you don't know who they are call on the editor of some paper, and he can tell you all about it.

The primary law is a farce, and the longer it is used, the more apparent will it appear. If you have a party, stay by it, and assist in selecting and electing good men to office from the ranks of the party to which you belong.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

Copyright, 1908, by Edwin A. Nye.

THIRTY YEARS IN HADES.

There is a hell.

No doubt about that.

Charles Herzog of South Dakota demonstrated its existence. He suffered its pangs for thirty years. He testified in writing and sealed the testimony by his death.

Tortured beyond endurance by remorse because he had murdered a beautiful girl and allowed an innocent man to be hanged for the crime, Herzog, after thirty years, wrote this:

When my lifeless body is found notify my mother, Mrs. Caroline Herzog of Girard, O. It will reveal my identity and the awful secret of my wretched life. I can endure it no longer.

"THE AWFUL SECRET OF MY WRETCHED LIFE."

Can you understand the significance of such a confession? Certainly not. But it may give you some insight into the awful agony of a human soul suffering the torments of the damned.

"I CAN ENDURE IT NO LONGER." What exquisite mental torture, what a world of heart suffering, is bound up in that feeling we know as remorse!

This man literally lived and suffered for thirty years IN HELL.

It is not necessary that we should be told that he was remorseful and gloomy, going about as if some grief burdened his soul—his conscience carried about always on his conscience the murder of a girl and the death of an innocent man upon whom he charged the murder.

Doubtless his frame of mind is described by the words that Milton puts into the mouth of his Satan:

"Which way I turn is hell, MYSELF AM HELL."

A man can get away from the society of other men, but he cannot get away from the society of himself either in time or eternity.

Jonathan Edwards in his widest reach of imagination and with his exhaustless vocabulary could scarcely picture a hell of literal fire and brimstone that would transcend the story of the suffering of Charles Herzog.

CAR SHORTAGE IS HOT FELT LOCALLY

Plenty of Empty Cars Obtainable in This Part of the State by Shippers.

Railroad men in the local yards regard the statements that have been made that there is a shortage of cars as a sort of a joke. Last winter there were in the local yards about fifteen hundred empty cars, part of which were here for repairs. All of these except about three hundred were sent out of here to various division terminals before the middle of April. At present there are only about seventy-five empty cars in the local yard, but at Fond du Lac there are standing waiting for business between seven and eight hundred cars. They are, however, billing all of their food and water cars that come in here to Clinton, Iowa, to be used in transporting cattle through to Chicago.

BERKMAN'S ARMY ROUTED

POLICE DISPERSE CROWD OF UNEMPLOYED IN GOTHAM.

Anarchist and Followers Descend on Commercial Travelers' Prosperity Congress—Suffrage gettes Also Call.

New York, Aug. 15.—Two rival "armies" descended upon the meeting of the Commercial Travelers' Prosperity Congress here Friday. First came a horde of grim looking men under the leadership of Alexander Berkman, professed anarchist, who some years ago shot H. C. Friel, the millionaire, after the Homestead steel strike riots.

It was necessary for the police to disperse the "army" and Berkman angrily reproached his followers as a "lot of spineless, drivelling idiots," for not opposing the police. Berkman and his followers said that they represented 40,000 unemployed workmen, and they came to demand participation in the prosperity congress.

Hardly less formidable was the second "army," for it was composed of determined suffragettes. They also demanded recognition by the prosperity congress. The police were not called upon to disperse this "army"—diplomacy was used.

After the meeting had been in session for some time a committee from the unemployed workmen asked to be admitted. This was after Berkman and his followers had been dispersed. The committee asked that a resolution be passed that the unemployed workmen were food and lodging and that while there was a demand for workmen in the western states the men had been out of work so long they did not have clothing or tools or money for transportation to the waiting positions. The resolution was from bitter language and stated that the authors of it were in thorough sympathy with properly movement.

Practically every large city in the country was represented at the meeting, either by commercial travelers, representatives of merchants' associations, or delegates from boards of trade. Acting Mayor McGowan of this city welcomed the participants.

A Road to Happiness.

It is not at all difficult to believe that it is easier to give than to receive. The English girl, however, as the former always knows exactly what she wants. But a fact which must not be lost sight of is that the American girl is admittedly entitled to demand what she wants, while she gets it because the American husband takes the view that it is easier to give it if it is wiser to refuse. The English girl, as a rule, loses her capacity for knowing exactly what she wants for the simple reason that she is aware that greater happiness lies in demanding what she desires from her mind.—Lady's Pictorial.

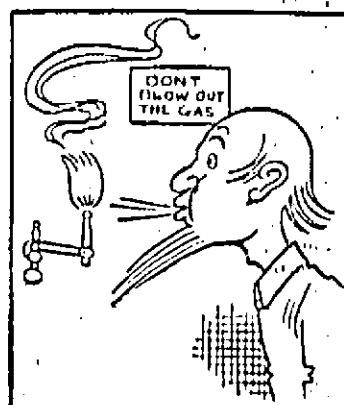

Side Lights on History.

The Washington estate had just been named Mount Vernon in honor of Admiral Vernon of the British navy.

"You'll have to stand for it, George," said Maj. Lawrence Washington to his younger brother. "The patriotic American to do honor to this spot, as the sacred shrine of his country's liberty, will think it named 'Vernon' on account of its abundant greenery."

George said nothing, but his face instantly assumed that stern, commanding expression so familiar to all of us in the patriot on the two cent postage stamp.

CHRYSLER: Gold Medal Flour is nourishing.

What is the Spinster Age?

In the days of John Aiken 22 or 23 was supposed to be a good and done-for age for a girl, who was expected to be married when she was 17 or 18 years of age. Nowadays a girl is said to be a spinster who waits until she is 25 or 30 to marry and then, of course, marriage is a very different thing from the hero of her salad days.

Another says "they can't say anything too good about Gold Medal Flour." CHRYSLER.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, August 15, 1868.—Low Water.—The river is lower at present than has been known in several years, the supply being inadequate to meet the demand of manufacturers depending upon its power. The water is all a greenish hue, having more the appearance of a stagnant pool than that of a running stream. The scarcity of water is not so detrimental this season to the business as a other seasons of the year, there being but little grain on the market here. The crop of the new crop, and the mill are being put in readiness for the fall and winter operations.

Fatal Accident.—An accident of the most shocking nature occurred at East Milton last evening, by which Mr. L. H. Butler was instantly killed by the cars.

In attempting to hold a frightened horse he was pushed upon the track, over which a train of cars was approaching, and not noticing the danger until too late, was knocked down, two cars passing over his body before the train was stopped, cutting him in two. The cars were a passenger train.

tion of a train which had just arrived, having been detached at a switch and been running quite slowly at the time, so slowly that they stopped entirely after the bloody work was completed. The leg of the unfortunate man was also broken, but whether by the cars or the plunging of the horses is uncertain.

Mr. Butler was a married man about 30 years of age, a carpenter by trade, and was known in the community where he resided as a young man of worth and enterprise.

Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 14.—The remains of Thaddeus Stevens reached Lancaster this evening at 6:15. Upon the arrival of the train at the depot the procession moved to the residence of the deceased statesman.

A large meeting of citizens, irrespective of party, was held in the court house after the arrival of the body and the remains, and arrangements were made for the proper observance of the day of the funeral. The funeral will take place at 2 o'clock p. m. and proceed to Shillbills cemetery, where Mr. Stevens selected a lot about a year ago.

Suggestive Questions on the Sunday School Lesson by Rev. Dr. Linscott.

Aug. 16th, 1908

Saul Tries to Kill David.—I. Sam. xviii:1-16.

Golden Text.—The Lord God is a sun and shield.—Ps. lxxv:11.

Verse 6.—Are the sorrows of success greater, or less, than the sorrows of defeat?

Which enjoy the more happiness, men who become prominent, or those who remain in obscurity?

Does God mean everybody to be prosperous?

Does faithfulness to duty always imply popularity and success?

Verse 7.—What accounts for the fact that David was more popular than Saul?

Why was Saul losing his popularity?

Verse 8.—Can you blame Saul for being angry when the people praised David more than they did him?

Is it a good thing to praise, to their faces, those that are praiseworthy?

Can you name a Bible character who rejoiced at the prosperity of another more than he did over his own?

Is it possible, and is it the duty, for everybody to rejoice when others prosper more than themselves?

Is it possible for a man to rejoice when, for his badness, God is taking away his position and giving it to another?

Does God in these days take away the positions of unfaithful men and give them to others?

Verse 10.—Is it ever right to set a watch upon the actions of others in the hope of catching them in wrongdoing?

May one be jealous of another and still be pure in heart, and does jealousy always imply sinfulness?

Verse 10.—What sense is God the father or mother of evil spirits?

When a whip springs a leak and stinks, is that in any sense an act of God?

When a bad man loses his temper, and raves, has God anything to do with it?

Is it one of the laws of God that those who give way to fierce jealousy go from bad to worse?

Verse 11.—Will jealousy make a man hate his best friend?

Does the sin of jealousy make its subjects miserable?

Verse 12.—Is it generally so, that a man who has forsaken God, and is losing as a result, is envious of a man who is true to God and is winning?

Verse 13.—What prompted Saul to make David a eunuch?

Did David in after life ever do a similar thing?

If a man gives way to passion or wrongdoing of any kind, will there likely be any limit to the sin he will commit either to cover up his tracks, or to accomplish his purpose?

Verse 14.—Is it a rule that the good and the true are the enemies of God and of good men, while the wicked are the friends of God and of good men?

Give your reasons. (This question is to be answered in writing by members of the club.)

City Need Not Fear Earthquake.
Geologists say that New York city is as unlikely to be disturbed by an earthquake as any place on the globe. It is possible that the east end of Long Island or the sandy shore of New Jersey may some time slip into the Atlantic ocean, but the rock foundations of the city are likely to stand until the final "wreck of matter and the crash of worlds."

MAKE YOUR DOLLARS WORK OVERTIME

THE man who can make his dollar do the work of a dollar and five cents is doing what the average capitalist does with his fortune, but the man who makes his dollar earn one dollar and twenty cents is taking advantage of opportunity.

Such a man is a benefit to any community in which he lives. He is thrifty, prudent, saving and economical—the very salt of the earth, and every business man wants his patronage. This man today is preparing for his winter necessities and before him looms up the big question of FUEL. It comes up every winter and he must meet it face to face. It means the spending of a considerable sum, and here is an opportunity to work his dollar overtime, if he will use his brain.

When we offer you Solvay at $7.00 per ton, we offer you a chance to save $2.00 on every ton that your furnace will consume. Compared to coal it saves you 20 per cent of the cost; it will give as much heat as a ton of hard coal, with lots less labor, less dirt, smoke and ash. Compared to wood it saves you 100 per cent on the cost, is easier handled, easier controlled and gives a more intense heat. It will start up five times as quick as hard coal.

"If I could have my choice between a ton of Solvay and a ton of hard coal, I would take the Solvay," said a man the other day in this office.

Say nothing about the saving in price, this man prefers Solvay,—and why? Because he can get more heat out of it with less labor than he can from hard coal.

The wage earner, the provider of a family, would ridicule the idea of throwing two dollars in the fire every time he purchased a ton of coal, or the idea that he was throwing into the fire half the cost of every cord of wood his cook stove consumes, yet he virtually does this when he refuses to consider using Solvay.

FIRST ORDER FOR 40 CARS

To show our abiding faith in SOLVAY our first order for fall of 1908 is for 40 carloads.

During August Solvay will be sold at $7.00 per ton, and there will be an advance of 50c. a ton at the ovens September 1st.

Telephone your order today. Either phone, or address 61 South River Street, Janesville.

F. A. TAYLOR CO., Distributors

Many people will buy new stoves this fall. To those we say, buy a stove with a grate, for Solvay MUST have a grate

BROKEN WATER MAIN GAVE MUCH TROUBLE

Clinton City Water Had to be Shut Off Thursday to Repair the Break.

Clinton, Aug. 14.—A bad break in the water main on Church street gave our officers quite a little trouble and hard work last Thursday and necessitated the shutting off of the supply from the whole West portion of the village.

Woolerman is taking a short vacation and is visiting at Oconomowoc. Mrs. Grace Eldridge and her lady friend from Oregon spent Friday in Chicago.

J. A. Hamilton and E. P. Babcock have made quite an improvement in the looks of their places by having cement curbing put in in front of their houses.

The boys were out with all of the home-made musical instruments that could be thought of on Wednesday night to welcome Fred Miller and wife. There was no lack for quantity even though the quality was not of the highest order.

E. H. Kizer and family have returned from their visit in Peconic.

The city water is being extended up Highland avenue and across on High street to Church.

City water has lately been put into the Isham building and the one used by Fred Miller.

Mrs. Dr. Schmidt of Detroit visited her parents here last week.

Perry Woodward intends to start for the South ere long where he expects to travel during the fall and winter.

Mrs. Geo. Miner is still very sick. Mrs. Stubbart of Lodi is here to assist in the care of her daughter, Mrs. Lottie Miner.

Misses Ethel and Elva Parks of Delavan spent a day here last week.

Both Johnson, a Clinton boy, and for years a resident of this place, died in Chicago last Tuesday at which place he had been living for some years.

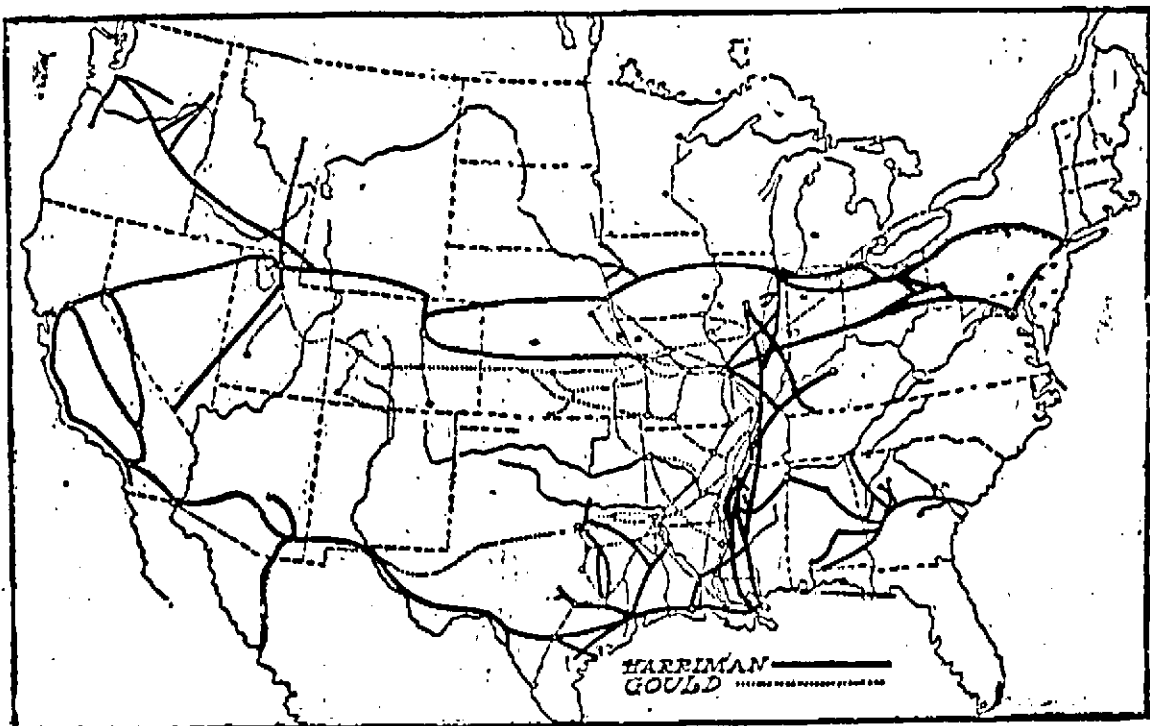

A. B. Isham and family are moving back into the rooms over their store to vacate the house recently purchased by C. W. Irish who will make some repairs upon the same before moving into it.

R. W. and Mrs. Cheever go to Chicago Saturday to meet the delegates to the National Editorial Association as they pass through the city on their way to the convention, to be held in St. Paul the following week. Mrs. Cheever will remain for a few days to look up fall styles in millinery, while he will go on to Fulton to attend the board meeting of the Myrtle Workers.

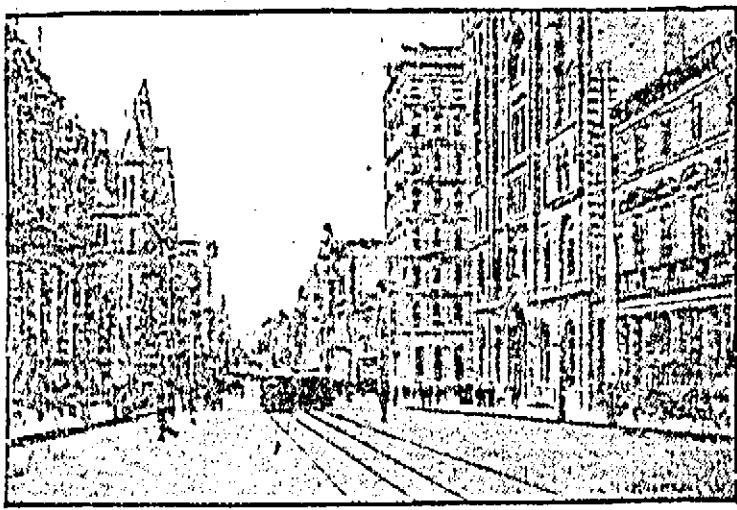

It is expected that now cement walks will be put in next week in front of three or four of the business places on the East side of Main St.

S. Cooper has lately been taking Geo. Miner's R. F. D. route and Arthur Cornwell the one usually taken by George Anderson.

Clinton has lately taken on what appears much like an epidemic of property changing. Last week H. W. Conley sold his place to F. Collier and a short time ago C. W. Irish bought Geo. Woodard's place, and

ROOM FILLED WITH SKELETONS.

Gruesome Discovery Made in an Ancient Monastery at Carientini.

For nearly 38 years the monastery at Carientini, Italy, has been abandoned, although the chapel connected with it has remained open for public worship. Behind the sacristy is a door which has always been shut and was believed to lead into one of the rooms of the monastery. The other day the syndic decided to make use of this room, so he had some workmen open the door. A horrifying spectacle met their gaze for the room was piled full of human skeletons, reaching almost to the ceiling. The syndic ordered the skeletons, some of which were more or less mummified bodies, to be taken out and buried in the Campo Santo. They numbered a few over 4,000.

Naturally, a tremendous sensation was caused by these discoveries, and the wildest conjectures given voice to. According, however, to the oldest inhabitant of Carientini, the facts are as follows: When monks inhabited the monastery, a certain sum was paid them for the privilege of sepulture in the church. The church, however, was small, and when there was no room for any more corpses, the monks, rather than lose an important source of income, continued to receive bodies for burial, but instead of depositing them beneath the floor of the church, cast them into the rooms behind the sacristy, or into the pavilions close by, where they have just been discovered.

WORLD'S NEED OF STRONG MEN.

Should Be Better Than the Generations of the Past.

Some of us are disposed to be satisfied if we can be pretty nearly as good as the men of the last generation. That will not do at all. The men of this generation have got to be a great deal better men—bigger, broader, sounder, keener, braver, men—than their fathers were. If they are not they will be swamped with the business of the world in their hands. The entire ethical standard of financial life is being, and must be, lifted up. We cannot do the enormously increased business of the world to-day on the moral plane where we were living 25 years ago. If we attempt it we shall plunge ourselves in chaos. We have got to have higher principles of justice and equality and clearer notions of financial integrity, and stronger convictions of fidelity to trusts, and a deeper sense of the business responsibility of every man to the whole community.—Washington Gladden.
